Foreword

HE announcement of the Sixth Annual Exhibition of the Society of Independent Artists, which was sent out to the artists of this country, said in part:

"The work of the Society will continue as it was begun, the exhibition being open to all artists, without selection of works by a jury and without the distinctions made by prizes.

"The fact that no deficit has been incurred during the last two years gives us a good reason to believe that the Society is established on a practical working basis. The members should however take this as only a stronger reason for striving to bring the exhibitions to their highest possible level as art. This will result when every serious worker in the country knows that both he and the country need the exhibition. It is not so much because of sales to be made or reputation to be increased that the artists need this exhibition; what is essential to them is to see their works among those of all schools and all degrees of merit, as well as to have a share in the development of art that comes from the existence of these exhibitions. The public needs the Independence because it is only at their exhibition that a complete survey of contemporary American art can be obtained. The increasing number of exhibitions made up of works invited from our walls gives an indication that this fact is being recognized by museum officials and the other persons who are placing before the public the art of the present day. The essential success of the Society depends on its becoming always more completely the channel through which the artists give the fullest statement of what they have achieved during the year. The directors have done what was within their ability to advance the material interests of the Society. The art of the exhibition depends on the members. Artists of all schools should see to it that the strong workers of their acquaintance exhibit this year.

"For such persons, not necessarily artists, who desire to give the Society their aid without taking part in the exhibitions, a class of Associate Members exists. Their dues are ten dollars annually and they receive the general notices and catalogues of the Society and members' season tickets to its exhibitions."

The Society once more has the pleasure of including in its exhibition a group of contemporary works by Indians of the Southwest, and once more extends its thanks to Dr. Edgar L. Hewett of the Museum of Santa Fe, New Mexico, for his kind assistance in obtaining these paintings. Those in our previous exhibitions have attracted the attention not only of visitors to our galleries but of artists and critics in Europe who have come to know the pictures through reproductions that have gone abroad. The comment upon them has in all cases been so favorable that the directors have felt that space must be given to these works in order that every assistance may be rendered to the persons who are trying to preserve for America one of the most interesting arts that have been produced in this country.

History of Art

by Elie Faure

Translated from the French
by Walter Pach

Volume I. Ancient Art

The Dial calls it: "Another Outline of History." Thomas Jewell Craven reviewing it in the Dial writes: "The most interesting and seductive history of the subject that has yet appeared. His pages gleam with brilliant images. . . . M. Faure's book is most distinguished. He converts archaeology into impassioned imagery, and his narrative gifts are remarkable."

Leon Kroll, eminent painter, writes: "It is the best volume on the art of that period I have ever read." Over 200 illustrations selected by the author. $6.00

BOSTON HERALD: "Such a work as Faure has undertaken could not have been written earlier. . . . There has existed no survey of the world's art as a whole until the four volumes of this series were written."
